IN the following catalogue I regret that it has been out of my power to be always accurate in marking prices. When I first discovered that I should be unable to do it, I thought to omit annexing any price, when it was doubtful; but, on further consideration, I concluded that a supposed price, or one near to that at which a book sells, would be of advantage in forming an opinion of the amount which books would cost, especially to distant correspondents.

The variety of Classical, Literary, and Professional books, comprised in this catalogue is already extensive. But, though I shall frequently be out of many books contained in it, yet I have no doubt but that I shall make very considerable additions to it, and that the variety will be much encreased every succeeding season.

385. Adams' (Alexander) Compendious Dictionary of the Latin Tongue, for the use of public seminaries and of private students. In this Dictionary the long and short syllables are distinctly marked. The derivative words are generally under their primitives. The infinitive of easy verbs is only inserted, and the nouns derived from them, when the meaning is obvious, are marked by contraction: so likewise adverbs derived from adjectives and participles. The present of the infinitive, rather than the first person of the indicative, is inserted as answering best to the English, and because from it derivatives are usually formed. When there is any difficulty in the conjugation of a verb, the difficulty is explained,

"Unfortunate boy! poorly wast thou accommodated during thy short sojourning among us; rudely wast thou treated,—sorely did thy feeling soul suffer from the scorn of the unworthy; and there are, at last, those who wish to rob thee of thy only meed, thy posthumous glory. Severe, too, are the censures of thy morals. In the gloomy moments of despondency, I fear thou hast utterred impious and blasphemous thoughts, which none can defend, and which neither thy youth, nor thy fiery spirit, nor thy situation can excuse. But let thy more rigid censors reflect, that thou wast literally and strictly but a boy." Dr. Knox.

Vol. I. The Elements of Algebra,
Vol. II. The Elements of Astronomy,
Vol. III. The Elements of Optics,
Vol. IV. The Principles of Fluxions,
Vol. V. The Principles of Mechanics, Hydrostatics, and the Conic Sections, Lon..1806, 16

The above highly valuable work comprises the substance of the Lectures in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy which are usually read in the university of Cambridge. The want of a system of this kind having been long complained of, Messrs. Vince and Wood agreed to undertake the work jointly. That the whole might form one system, the parts drawn up by each were submitted to the consideration of the other, and such alterations and additions made, as were thought necessary by both.

N. B. William P. Farrand intends reprinting this book if he can find sufficient encouragement.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE

OF THE

LAW OF VENDORS AND PURCHASERS OF ESTATES,

BY EDWARD BURTENSHAW SUGDEN, OF LINCOLN'S INN.

The first edition of this book was published in London, in 1805. The second edition, which I propose to reprint, is just received from London. This edition has been revised and corrected by the author, and considerably enlarged by the introduction of a great number of new cases. This book will be published with all convenient dispatch in one large volume, royal 8vo. Price to those who subscribe and pay for the book before it is published, $ 5, 25, neatly bound in calf. After it is published it will be sold at $ 6. Also,

AN ABRIDGMENT

OF THE

LAWS OF NISI PRIUS.

Part I. containing 12 chapters under the following titles: viz.

1. Account,	5. Attorney,	9. Bills of Exchange,
2. Adultery,	6. Auction,	10. Carriers,
3. Assault & Battery,	7. Bankrupt,	11. Common,
4. Assumpsit,	8. Baron & Feme,	12. ConsequentialDamages.

This is a new work just published in London. The plan of it may be more fully understood from the editor's

ADVERTISEMENT TO PART I.

"This work will be completed in three parts, nearly equal in size. The second and last parts are in a state of forwardness and will be published with all convenient expedition. The decisions on the Statute of Frauds, Policies of Insurance, and Promissory Notes will be given under their appropriate titles in the second and last parts."

This volume will contain near 400 8vo. pages. To those who subscribe and pay for the book before it is published, it will be charged at $ 3, 50, neatly bound in calf. After the book is published it will be sold at $ 4 in the same binding.

William P. Farrand begs leave to present his respects to American Authors, also to Compilers, Translators, and Conductors of Periodical Publications, and to solicit them, if agreeable, to furnish him with a copy of their books, to deposit with a general collection of American works in London. It is the particular wish of a number of literary gentlemen in England to have the benefit of such a collection. Publications of the above kind will be thankfully received, if sent, addressed to William P. Farrand, No. 170, Market-street, Philadelphia, or No. 108, Hatton Garden, London.
